Holy Trinity Church in Newtown has provided a Peace Garden for the interment of cremated remains. We are pleased to make this facility available to all people having a connection with the Parishes of Newtown or Soberton, as well as those living in the Portsmouth Diocese.

Newtown is positioned in the Meon Valley on the edge of the Forest of Bere and the South Downs National Park – an area of outstanding natural beauty.

The Peace Garden is the result of many years of work by the parishioners and Parochial Church Council (PCC) of Holy Trinity to create a special place in the Church Meadow where villagers, and others, are able to inter and visit the cremated remains of their loved ones. Parishioners have kindly donated seats which have been placed within the Peace Garden for relatives who wish to enjoy the peace and tranquillity that is found in the Peace Garden and Churchyard.

You can select any available plot, or plots, within the Peace Garden either by reservation or upon the death of loved ones. The pre-laid grey granite plaques are all of a standard size on which wording, as agreed, will be engraved when an interment is to be made.

Generally, each plot will be used for the interment of a single set of remains. However, at the discretion of the PCC, multiple interments of cremated remains may take place within a single plot.

If you wish to find out the detailed terms and conditions for reservations, interments and on-going maintenance, with current pricing, please contact the Churchwarden of Holy Trinity:

You are welcome to visit Holy Trinity at any time, as the Peace Garden never closes.
